

UNW

If the sun rise unwilling to his race,
Clouds on his brows, and spots upon his face,
Suspect a drizzling day. Dryden.
Heav'n's unchang'd decrees attentive hear;
More pow'ful gods have torn thee from my side,
Unwilling to resign, and doom'd a bride. Dryden.
UNWILLINGLY. adv. Not with good-will; not without loath-ness.

The whining school-boy, with his fatchel,
And frowning morning face, creeping like snail
Unwillingly to school. Shakep. As You Like It.
A feast the people hold to Dagon, and forbid
Laborious works, unwillingly this rest
Their superstition yields. Milton's Agonistes.

Still dismay'd
By seas or skies, unwillingly they stay'd. Denham.
These men were once the prince's foes, and then
Unwillingly they made him great: but now,
Being his friends, shall willingly undo him. Denham.
The dire contagion spreads so fast,
That where it seizes, all relief is vain;
And therefore must unwillingly lay waste
That country, which would else the foe maintain. Dryden.

UNWILLINGNESS. n. f. Loathsomeness; disinclination.
Obedience, with professed unwillingness to obey, is no better than manifest disobedience. Hooker, b. v.

What moved the man to yield to her persuasions? Even the same cause that hath moved all men since, an unwillingness to grieve her, and make her sad, left she should pine, and be overcome with sorrow. Raleigh's Hist. of the World.

I see with what unwillingness
You lay upon me this command, and through your fears Discern your love, and therefore must obey you. Denham.
There is in most people a reluctance and unwillingness to be forgotten. We observe, even among the vulgar, how fond they are to have an inscription over their grave. Swift.

TO UNWIND. v. a. pret. and part. passive unwound.
1. To separate any thing convolved; to untwist; to untwine.
All his subjects having by some years learned, so to hope for good and fear harm, only from her, that it should have needed a stronger virtue than his, to have unwound so deeply an entered vice. Sidney, b. ii.

Empirick politicians use deceit:
You boldly shew that skill which they pretend,
And work by means as noble as your end;
Which should you veil, we might unwind the clue,
As men do nature, till we came to you. Dryden.

2. To disentangle; to loose from entanglement.
Desiring to serve God as they ought; but being not so skillful as in every point to unwind themselves, where the snarers of gloomy speech lie to entangle them, are in mind not a little troubled, when they hear so bitter invectives against that, which this church hath taught them to reverence as holy. Hooker, b. v.

As you unwind her love from him,
Left it should ravel, and be good to none,
Bottom it on me. Shakep. Two Gentlemen of Verona.

TO UNWIND. v. n. To admit evolution.
Put the bottoms into clean scalding water, and they will easily unwind. Mortimer's Husbandry.

UNWIPED. adj. Not cleared.
Their hands and faces were all badg'd with blood,
So were their daggers, which unwip'd we found Upon their pillows. Shakep. Macbeth.

UNWISE. adj. Weak; defective in wisdom.
O good, but most unwise patricians! why,
You grave, but reckless senators, have you thus Giv'n Hydra here to chafe an officer? Shakep. Coriolanus.

Be not ta'en tardy by unwise delay. Shakep.
He who of those delights can judge, and spare
To interpose them oft, is not unwise. Milton.

This the Greeks say, this the barbarians; the wife and the unwise. Tillotson.

When kings grow stubborn, slothful, or unwise,
Each private man for public good should rise. Dryden.
When the balance of power is duly fixt in a state, nothing is more dangerous or unwise, than to give way to the first steps of popular encroachments. Swift.

UNWISELY. adv. Weakly; not prudently; not wisely.
Lady Zelmane, like some, unwisely liberal, that more delight to give presents than pay debts, chose rather to be-flow her love upon me, than to recompense him. Sidney.

Unwisely we the wiser East Pity, supposing them oppress'd
With tyrant's force. Waller.

TO UNWISH. v. a. To wish that which is, not to be.
My liege, would you and I alone,
Without more help, could fight this royal battle.—
—Why now thou hast unwish'd five thousand men;
Which likes me better than to wish us one. Shakep.

UNW

To desire there were no God, were plainly to unwish their own being, which must be annihilated in the subtraction of that essence, which substantially supporteth them. Brown.

UNWISHED. adj. Not fought; not desired.
So jealous is she of my love to her daughter, that I never yet begin to open my mouth to the inevitable Philoclea, but that her unwish'd presence gave my tale a conclusion, before it had a beginning. Sidney.

To his unwish'd yoke
My foul consents not to give lov'reignty. Shakep.
While heaping unwish'd wealth I distant roam;
The best of brothers at his natal home
By the dire fury of a traitress wife,
Ends the sad evening of a stormy life. Pope.

UNWIS'D. adj. Unthought of; not known.
To UNWIS'D. v. a. To deprive of understanding. Not used.

Friends all but now; even now
In quarter, and in terms like bride and groom
Divesting them for bed; and then, but now,
As if some planet had unwisht men,
Swords out, and tilting one at other's breasts. Shakep.

UNWITHDRA'WING. adj. Continually liberal.
Wherefore did nature pour her bounties forth,
With such a full and unwithdrawing hand,
Covering the earth with odours, fruits, and flocks? Milton.

UNWITHSTOOD. adj. Not opposed.
Credly plains,
And Agincourt, deep ting'd with blood, confels
What the Slurs vigour unwithstood, Cou'd do in rigid fight. Philips.

UNWITNESSED. adj. Wanting evidence; wanting notice.
Least their zeal to the cause should any way be unwit-ness'd. Hooker.

UNWITTINGLY. adv. [Properly unwittingly, from unwitting.]
Without knowledge; without consciousness.
In these fatal things it falls out, that the high-working powers make second causes unwittingly accessory to their determinations. Sidney.

Those things are termed most properly natural agents, which keep the law of their kind unwittingly, as the heavens and elements of the world, which can do no otherwise than they do. Hooker, b. i.

Atheists repudiate all title to heaven, merely for present pleasure; besides the extreme madness of running such a deperate hazard after death, they unwittingly deprive themselves here of that tranquillity they seek for. Bentley.

1. Uncommon; unusual; rare; infrequent.
His sad, dull eyes, sunk deep in hollow pits,
Could not endure th' unwonted sun to view. Fairy Queen.

My father's of a better nature
Than he appears by speech; this is unwonted
Which now came from him. Shakep.

Every unwonted meteor is portentous, and some divine signification. Glanville.

Thick breath, quick pulse, and heaving of my heart,
All signs of some unwonted change appear. Dryden.

2. Unaccustomed; unused.
Philoclea, who blushing, and withal smiling, making shamefastness pleasant, and pleasure shamefast, tenderly moved her feet, unwonted to feel the naked ground. Sidney, b. ii.

Sea calves unwonted to fresh waters fly. Moy.

O how oft shall he
On faith and changed gods complain; and seas
Rough with black winds and storms,
Unwonted shall admire. Milton.

UNWORKING. adj. Living without labour.
Lazy and unworking shopkeepers in this being worse than gamesters, do not only keep so much of the money of a country in their hands, but make the publick pay them for it. Lact.

UNWORKSHIPPED. adj. Not adored.
He resolv'd to leave
Unworkshipp'd, unobey'd the throne supreme. Milton.

UNWORTHILY. adv. Not according to desert; either above or below merit.

I vow'd, base knight,
To tear the garter from thy craven legs,
Which I have done, because unworthily
Thou wast installed. Shakep. Hen. VI.

Fearing lest my jealous aim might err,
And so unworthily disgrace the man,
I gave him gentle looks. Shakep.

If we look upon the Odyssey as all a fiction, we consider it unworthily. It ought to be read as a story founded upon truth, adorned with embellishments of poetry. Brown.

UNWORTHINESS. n. f. Want of worth; want of merit.
A mind fearing the unworthiness of every word that should be presented to her ears, at length brought it forth in this manner. Sidney, b. ii.

UNY

O let not an excellent spirit do itself such wrong, as to think where it is placed, embraced, and loved, there can be any unworthiness; since the weakest mist is not easier driven away by the sun, than that is chased away with so high thoughts. Sidney.

Every night he comes with songs compos'd
To her unworthiness: it nothing it tends us
To chide him from our caves, for he perlists. Shakep.

I fear'd to find you in another place;
But, since you're here, my jealousy grows less:
You will be kind to my unworthiness. Dryden.

Have a true and humble sense of your own unworthiness, which will not suffer you to rise to a confidence unwarrantably pretended to by some. Wake on Death.

UNWORTHY. adj.
1. Not deserving.
The Athanasian creed and doxology should remain in use, the one as a most divine explication of the chiefest articles of our christian belief; the other as an heavenly acclamation of joyful applause to his praises, in whom we believe: neither the one nor the other unworthy to be heard founding, as they are in the church of Christ. Hooker.

Every particular accident, not unworthy the remembrance, for brevity I wittingly pass over. Kneller.

2. Wanting merit.
Degree being vizarded,
Th' unworthy shews as fairly in the mask. Shakep.

Are there unworthy men chosen to offices? Whiggists.
So may I, blind fortune leading me,
Mist that which one unworthy may attain;
And die with grieving. Shakep. Merch. of Venice.

3. Mean.
Tell me, Philoclea, did you ever see such a shepherd?
did you ever hear of such a prince? and then tell me if a small or unworthy assault have conquered me? Sidney.

4. Not suitable; not adequate.
I laid at her feet a work, which was unworthy her, but which I hope she will forgive. Dryden.

Our friend's papers are in my hands, and I will take care to suppress things unworthy of him. Pope to Swift.

Care is taken to interperse additions in such a manner, that scarce any book can be bought, without purchasing something unworthy of the author. Swift.

5. Unbecoming; vile.
The brutal action rous'd his manly mind:
Mov'd with unworthy usage of the maid,
He, though unarm'd, resolv'd to give her aid. Dryden.

UNWOUND. part. pass. and pret. of unwind. Unwinded.
Thatchers tie with withs, but old pitch'd ropes unwound are more lasting. Mortimer's Husbandry.

1. Not wounded.
We may offend
Our yet unwounded enemies. Milton's Par. Lost, b. vi.

2. Not hurt.
Oh! blest with temper:
She who can love a sister's charms, or hear Sighs for a daughter with unwounded ear. Pope.

TO UNWREATH. v. a. To untwine.
The beads of wild oats, and of divers other wild plants, continually wreath and unwreath themselves, according to the temperature of the ambient air. Boyle.

UNWRITING. adj. Not assuming the character of an author.
The peace of the honest unwriting subject was daily molest. Arbuthnot.

UNWRITTEN. adj. Not conveyed by writing; oral; traditional.
A rule of right unwritten, but delivered by tradition from one to another. Spenser's State of Ireland.

As to his understanding, they bring him in void of all notion, a rude, unwritten blank; making him to be created as much an infant, as others are born. South's Sermons.

The laws of England may be divided into the written law, and the unwritten. Hale.

UNWORKED. adj. Not laboured; not manufactured.
Or prove at least to all of wiser thought,
Their hearts were fertile land, although unwork'd. Fairfax.

Yet thy moist clay is pliant to command;
Unwork'd and easy to the potter's hand:
Now take the mold, now bend thy mind to feel
The first sharp motions of the forming wheel. Dryden.

UNWRUNG. adj. Not pinched.
We that have free souls, it touches us not; let the galled jade winch, our withers are unwring. Shakep. Hamlet.

UNYIELDED. adj. Not given up.
O'erpower'd at length, they force him to the ground,
Unyielded as he was, and to the pillar bound. Dryden.

TO UNYOKE. v. a.
1. To loose from the yoke.
Our army is dispers'd already;
Like youthful fleers unyok'd, they took their course
East, west, north, south. Shakep. Hen. IV.

VOC

Homer calls them like gods, and yet gives them the employment of slaves; they unyoke the mules. Brooks.

2. To part; to disjoin.
Shall these hands, so lately purg'd of blood,
So join'd in love, so strong in both,
Unyoke this seizure, and this kind regret. Shakep.

UNYOKED. adj.
1. Having never worn a yoke.
Sev'n bullocks yet unyok'd for Pheebus chuse,
And for Diana sev'n unspotted ewes. Dryden.

2. Licentious; unrestrained.
I will a-while uphold
The unyok'd humour of your idleness. Shakep. Hen. IV.

UNZONED. adj. Not bound with a girdle.
Easy her motion seem'd, serene her air;
Full, though unzon'd, her bosom. Prior.

VOCABULARY. n. f. [vocabulary, Lat. vocabularium, Fr. vocabulaire, It. vocabolario, a lexicon; a word-book.
Some have delivered the polity of spirits, and that they stand in awe of conjurations, which signify nothing, not only in the dictionary of man, but in the subtiler vocabulary of Satan. Brown's Vulg. Errors.

Among other books, we should be furnished with vocabula-ries and dictionaries of several forts. Watts.

VOCAL. adj. [vocal, Fr. vocalis, Lat.]
1. Having a voice.

Eyes are vocal, tears have tongues;
And there be words not made with lungs;
Sententious show's! O let them fall,
Their cadence is rhetorical. Crosby.

Witness if I be silent, morn or even,
To hill, or valley, fountain, or fresh shade;
Made vocal by my song, and taught his praise. Milton.

Smooth-sliding Minicius, crown'd with vocal reeds,
That strain I heard was of a higher mood. Milton.

None can animate the lyre,
And the mute strings with vocal souls inspire,
As Helen, in whose eyes ten thousand Cupids dwell. Dryden.

Mennon, though stone, was counted vocal;
But 'twas the god, mean while, that spoke all.
Rome oft has heard a cross hurraung,
With prompting priest behind the hanging. Prior.

2. Uttered or modulated by the voice.
They which, under pretence of the law ceremonial being abrogated, require the abrogation of instrumental music, approving nevertheless the use of vocal melody to remain, must shew some reason wherefore the one should be thought a legal ceremony, and not the other. Hooker.

And join'd their vocal worship to the choir
Of creatures wanting voice. Milton's Par. Lost.

VOCALITY. n. f. [vocalitas, Lat. from vocal.] Power of utterance; quality of being utterable by the voice.
L and R being in extremes, one of roughness, the other of smoothness and freeness of vocality, are not easy in tract of vocal speech to be pronounced spiritality. Holder.

TO VOCALIZE. v. a. [from vocal.] To form into voice.
It is one thing to give an impulse to breath alone; and other thing to vocalize that breath, i. e. in its passage through the larynx, to give it the sound of human voice. Holder.

VOCALLY. adv. [from vocal.] In words; articulately.
Although it is as natural to mankind, to express their desires vocally, as it is for brutes to use their natural vocal signs; yet the forming of languages into this or that fashion, is a business of institution. Hale's Origin of Mankind.

VOCATION. n. f. [vocation, Fr. vocatio, Lat.]
1. Calling by the will of God.
Neither doth that which St. Paul, or other apostles, teach, enforce the utter disability of any other men's vocation thought requisite in this church for the saving of souls. Hooker, b. v.

They which thus were in God eternally by their intended admission to life, have, by vocation or adoption, God actually now in them. Hooker, b. v.

2. Summons.
What can be urged for them who not having the vocation of poverty to scribble, out of meer wantonness make themselves ridiculous? Dryden.

3. Trade; employment.
He would think his service greatly rewarded, if he might obtain by that means to live in the sight of his prince, and yet practise his own chosen vocation. Sidney, b. i.

God's mother, in a vision full of majesty, Will'd me to leave my base vocation. Shakep. Hen. VI.

God has furnished men with faculties sufficient to direct them in the way they should take, if they will seriously employ them, when their ordinary vocations allow them the leisure. Lecky.

A whore in her vocation,
Keeps punctual to an assignation. Swift.

VOCATIVE. n. f. [vocativus, Fr. vocatif, Lat.] The grammatical case used in calling or speaking to.
